Working Paper No. 6/2010, Vol. XIX

---

Summary

The Slovenian government could find the Basic Income (BI) proposal a better solution than the current social security system by 1. guaranteeing that no citizen's income would fall below a minimal level for any reason; 2. preserving individual autonomy and the incentive to work, and 3. simplifying government social policy and lowering administrative costs. The aim is the introduction of the Basic Income guarantee by restructuring the current framework of public budget and balanced income and expenditure.
